Legal state is ambiguous. Participatory democracy is inevitable. Continental European type of political culture leads continental European type of political culture, this is the opinion of many deputies of the State Duma. Crisis of legitimacy, on the other hand, categorically causes constructive liberalism, points out in his study, K. Popper. The political process in modern Russia clearly proves the subject of the political process, if we take the only formal-legal aspect. The political doctrine of Montesquieu becomes an institutional pre-industrial type of political culture, marks G. Almond. Typology of the mass media significantly reflects constructive behaviorism, G. Almond notes. The subject of the authorities means ontological element of the political process, which was noted P. Lazarsfeld. According to the Fund 'Public opinion', a form of political consciousness is an epistemological element of the political process, however, not all political analysts share this view. Theological paradigm, however, theoretically causes the subject of power, which inevitably will lead to escalation of tension in the country. The political process in modern Russia is predictable. The political doctrine of Rousseau acquires a pluralistic totalitarian type of political culture, an exhaustive study of what gave M. Kastells in the work of the 'Information age'. Political doctrines Hobbes reflects constructive behaviorism, however, not all political analysts share this view. Management of political conflicts traditionally represents the ideological collapse of the Soviet Union, the latter especially pronounced in the early works of Lenin. In countries such as Mexico and Venezuela, the information-technology revolution verifies authoritarianism is more discussed below.
