Acorns of Love and Wisdom, H. Steven Robertson, River City Press Inc, 2005, 0974093319, 9780974093314, 119 pages. A poem is a picture in words, sounds and thoughts that rings the bell of emotion, of psychological harmony and or discord that exists within us all. It is a recording of physical sensation that gives us (the vicarious perceiver the revived consciousness from our memories of past experience or anticipation of events yet to come. A poem forms the squeezing of our beings so that droplets of nostalgia and pleasant emotional experience reveal the environmental building blocks that are the source of ourselves..

Truely remarkable prose written in a style that all peoples of every day life can relate to. There is something here for everyone, be it reflections of ones years gone by, or hopes for the years to come. If after a tired day at the office or long day with the kids, simply sit down and open this little book and I promise you that within a short time the burdens of life will seem as distant as the Milky way. Michael Strickland

In no way does Steve Robertson, at 6'4: tall a"nd 255 lb., fit the stereotypical image of the sensitive, soft-spoken poet. In fact, there's nothing delicate about the rugged, hulking frame of the coach/athlete, educator/author, except his heart. The compassion in Steve's heart is reflected in his poetry and his art. In "Acorns of Love and Wisdom," a lifetime of experience is described in words of beauty, wonder tragedy and triumph. With threads of love, humor, irony and elegance, Steve weaves a spellbinding tapestry of life.

"Acorns of Love and Wisdom," has just appeared on the market. ISBN 09740933-1-9 and available through Barnes and Noble. Also, Email me, Steve Robertson at coachrtoo@yahoo.com if you would like me to send one to you. This will make an excellent gift and/or something to keep on your night stand to read a few poems before going to bed.
