I wanted to give this book to my grandson for his 4th birthday and was very disappointed. The book is only 3x5" and has very poor quality pictures. I paid $33 for this new book from Snag-A-Deal however, the back of the book says $3.99 US! - It was even used! When I emailed Snag-A-Deal about returning this book, they actually said "why would you purchase if you did not like the price?" I will not even give this book if I got it for free. Now Snag-A-Deal will not allow me to return the book because it is not damaged - how about the fact that it is not NEW as advertised. Save yourself a headache and do not deal with Snag-A-Deal

Imagine how exciting it would be if you discovered a dinosaur egg. And what if the impossible happened and that egg was almost ready to hatch? You could expect a very unusual pet! What might the dinosaur look like when it grew up? What would it need to eat? Where would it sleep? In this activity, each student will hatch a personal dinosaur.

I made a 15 frame ball bouncing cycle, and figured that if I made the dinosaur step in 20 frames, the whole thing would loop in 60 frames. I took off the top forty pages and made the dinosaur, then traced it systematically in the flip book -- too bad I got steps and strides mixed up in my calculations O_O so for part of it the dino is stepping too fast. (That's what "Too Fast" and "Slower" are for, to indicate when the changes occur.)
